

Episode 411 – Fresh Choice

Answer Key

1. Providing fresh organic produce to restaurants, farmers and community members. Role model for other farms.
2. Community Supported Agriculture, where community members buy a stake in the farm for groceries in return. This is important because growers and consumers interact. Respect for the land and the farmer is cultivated through this process.
3. Biodiesel that is used on the farm is waste product (used fry oil) from restaurants. It is used to fuel tractors and other vehicles on the farm.
4. The grower and consumer work together creating respect for one another and the land. Products are recycled, environmental stewardship is practiced, organic produce is farmed, people are being fed, and the earth is being helped.
5. Taking half your acreage and growing it to meet your energy needs.

Website resources:

America's Heartland: americasheartland.org/episodes/episode_411/fresh_choice.htm

Crescent Organic Farm: www.crescentmoonorganicfarm.com